LONDON, November 5 .- The suggestion was made in the house of com-mons by Sir Alfred Mond that legislation be enacted to suspend during the war payment of rent, insurance preinterest on mortgages and similar fixed obligations of men who join the army. Sir Alfred, whose suggestion was received with favor, said that these charges were like mill-stones around the necks of many men, who, except for them, would be glad to enlist. Premier Asquith said the government fully recognized the importance of the problem and promised to consider the suggestion carefully.

Conservationists of the United States who are now outlining their program of idea, battle this winter before Congress, it was learned in Washington today, intend to nake an early effort to have President Wilson announce his position with reference to the bills which did not pass at the last session of Congress. Unless they can obtain from the White House some ssurance that the conservation program which was espoused by the democrats at the beginning of the present administration will be pushed this winter it may be that the conservationists will attempt to tack some features of the conservation measures on to the army and navy appropriation bills, and thus hook up the conservation propaganda with the admin-stration program for national defense. of its military defenses, if necessary, in time of war.

Whether the conservationists will be able to force the hooking up of the national defense idea with the conservation ideas remains to be seen. The democratic majority in the House has been cut down and the conservationists will not have as many votes in the House during the new Congress as they had last year. Secretary Lane of the Interior Department has already announced that the government will cause to be introduced in the new Congress early in the session a bill very similar to that known last year as the Ferris water power bill, but nothing has been said so far about the bills known as the general development bill, the water powers on navigable streams bill or the leasing of grazing and homestead lands bill. The proposal to lease rights by the government is at the bottom of all these bills, and most of the advocacy of or opposition to that idea has caused the debates that have been held on the bills. Representatives Raker of California and Taylor of Colorado, who were the two House members principally opposed to the leasing idea, will be back in the next Congress. Representative La Follette of Washington will also be in the next Congress, but Representative Johnson of Utah was defeated. These men helped to oppose the leasing idea.

Those Favoring Leasing Idea. EAGLE PASS, Tex., November 5 .-Gen. Venustiano Carranza has express ed his appreciation for what the United States government had done for him. In an extended talk with John Lind, personal representative of President Wilson in Mexico, First Chief Carranza displayed great admiration for President Wilson and for the "con stancy of purpose and good will which he has shown in dealing with the Mexican situation." Carranza also voice to the hope that diplo-As for those who favored the leasing idea, Representative Ferris of Oklahoma will be in the next Congress, and so will Representatives Brown of New York, Hayden of Arizona and Stout of New York, Paragraphics Crabon of Paragraphic matic relations between the United States government and the de facto Mexican government would be resumed

But it is said that the question of how the water powers of the country shall be regulated must come up and be settled in Congress this winter, in some form or other. Many laws dealing with the subject are now lapsing or expiring by limitation, and it is said that unless the Department of the Interior and the War Department, which have control of water powers, can get authority to act under new laws, they/ will be taken into the courts. Incidentally, it is said, too, that Representative Freer of Wisconsin intends to attack the way the last rivers and harbors appropriation has been administered by the engineers of the War Department the minute Congress opens. There are rumors, too, of a quarrel between the National Rivers and Harbors Congress and the National Conservation Association on the a complete understanding among the Mexican people with reference to wha the next government stood for and it will insist upon. heart. The general development bill was passed by the House at the last Congress and favorably reported by the Senate committee on public lands. This contained general conservation principles. The Ferris water power bill was for the leasing of water powers on public lands or in the national forests for a term of fifty years with a nominal charge and minor regulations by the Department of the Interior. It passed the House of Representatives and was reported favorably by the Senate committee on public lands. The grazing bill provided for leasing grazing lands on the public domain. The House committee reported out a substitute for this bill, which passed the House, but was not considered in the Senate. The water powers on navigable streams bill Gen. Carranza gave assurances to Consul John R. Silliman that Mexican bandits could find no refuge from pursuit on the Mexican side of the border, and suggested a co-operative plan to exterminate outlawry, in which the United States authorities will be asked to participate. He repeated his suggestion made during his conferences with Silliman at Piedras Negras, that the Carranza troops drive the bandits northward, capturing those they could and counting on the United States authorities to arrest all who succeeded in escaping across the border.
